The Story of a Young Wife's Devotion to a Bad Man.

A tragical story is told which comes to us from St. Louis. John C. Parker, a moulder by trade, and 33 years of age, for years has been an evil influence.

He was arraigned to stand trial for a brutal and cruel murder.

Nellie Parker, his young wife, was a slight, pretty and delicate little woman. Though her family is not wealthy, she was well educated and of a high social position was so much better than her husband's, that their marriage about two years ago made quite a local sensation.

The young wife, Nellie, was there, the sympathy of the community was for her, and she was noted as his only redeeming feature. A Singular Railway Accident.

Now let me tell you of the most remarkable railway accident man ever looked at, says a newspaper correspondent.

It happened on Saturday evening, by the Vandalia line. We left St. Louis at 7 o'clock Saturday evening, by the Vandalia line.

At four o'clock the next morning, when we were 20 miles west of Indianapolis, I was awakened in my Pullman car by a great knocking and bumping, and in a few moments the car came to a standstill. When I got out I beheld this. The engine was two hundred yards ahead by itself, the tender being off the rails. At the place the track is on an embankment eight or ten feet high, and there is a vacant space of land between the bottom of the line and the fence. The ground was covered with long grass, snow and ice. The whole train was spread out back of the engine, the cars retaining their relative positions, but the line extending down the bank and along the bottom in a curved line, like a snake. The two mail cars were on their sides and without wheels; the express cars and two freight cars had no wheels, but stood on their bottoms. A passenger car came next; some of its wheels were gone, one end was on the line and the other at the bottom of the bank. The Pullman I was in, had just left the rails, as had another, and two that followed it were on the tracks. The mail bags had caught fire and were burning, but were not under control. Now for the strangest feature—not a single person was hurt. The ground was so hard that the wheels ran on it until they were torn off, and then the cars began to slide and went down like boys coasting. The cause of the accident was a sharp frost, which had broken the steel rails as sharply as a piece of glass. A train came for us at eight o'clock, and we made such good time after that that we were only four hours late in New York. The American gentleman didn't seem to make much of it. The conductor stayed abed.

A Nunificent Gift.

The following legend has been made to the City of Fall River, Mass., by Mrs. Mary B. Young, a rich widow, whose only son, by a former marriage, died, shortly after he had reached the years of manhood.

His death was a sore affliction, and the tender love she bore him has prompted his mother to make a proposition to the city to erect, at her own expense, in memory of her son, the Bradford Matthew Chalmers Durfee Building, to be used for the purpose of a high school. The sum of $50,000, the income of which she has placed at the disposal of the city, is a sum of $50,000, the income of which she has placed at the disposal of the city.

The proposition is made on condition that the school and apparatus connected with it shall be subject to the approval of certain persons to be named by Mrs. Young in her deed of gift. The gift is the greatest ever given by an individual to the city, and is the more highly prized because of the actual necessity for such a building.

Aspiration for a new high school has been actively carried on for more than four years, and consequently the offer was most thankfully received.

The site—containing 500 square rods of the new building is the finest view of the city's limits, situated on a hill overlooking the entire area. The gift is valued at $500,000, and the city government in accepting it, expressed its appreciation of the gift.
